POSITANO

Positano is perhaps a unique place in the world! It is a jewel of spontaneous architecture, set on the rock overlooking the sea. Clusters of colorful houses, sometimes cubic in appearance, are built on often very steep steps, which descend to the beach, connected by alleys and long stairways.

Traveling along the coastal road offers sudden panoramic views from above of the small town, disembarking from the sea is truly a unique experience that fills the eyes and soul with beauty!

And it is precisely from the sea, around the 1st century AD, that the Romans first arrived, intent on building sumptuous seaside villas in Positano and along the Amalfi Coast 'for the exercise of their refined leisure'. The villa in Positano is said to have belonged to Posides Claudi Cesaris, a freedman of the emperor Claudius, hence the name Posidianum extended from the villa to the entire place.
